The Warsaw School of Economics is hosting the first project workshop of the Visegrad Strategic Project: Transport Integration for Prosperity. The Importance of Rail Connections for the V4 Internal Cohesion. The project, in which six universities from all the V4 countries are participating, aims for harmonisation of V4 transportation policies. It will enable the improvement of coordination of this policy and also the improvement of cross border connections.

The workshop participants will present and discuss the first step of the project, the research matrix for both research sections: transport-policy and transport-geography. This will cover all the issues of rail transportation in the V4 countries which will be important for identifying the specific approaches and possible common steps or harmonization.
